OPINION

Robert Robb
USA TODAY NETWORK

President Joe Biden wants to take a serious, early run at comprehensive immigration reform.

That’s good.

Unfortunately, his initial proposal doesn’t offer a start sounding point, substantively or politically. Billions of dollars are involved.

First, Congress should pass a standalone bill that provides permanent legal status and a pathway to citizenship for Dreamers, people brought here illegally while children.

The Obama administration established, by executive action, a program by which dreamers could obtain legal status, including the ability to work and attend college. The Trump administration terminated it in 2017.

Biden rescinded the order that terminated the program in 2018, and a federal court ruled against the Trump administration. Then Congress, largely suspended current immigration policy.

Unfortunately, his initial proposal doesn’t offer a substantive base to study it. He has largely suspended current immigration policy.

Another side feels that the district does not repay taxpayer money as intended. They fully support education and want their money spent on those that will benefit the students in the community.

It is true that these immigrants violated our laws to get here. That is the way they must be processed by the immigration policy for many years. That policy was roughly as follows. We try to nul you if you illeg- ally cross the border. But if you make it into the inte-deral economy. It is a federal program that electronically confirms legal eligibility to work in this country.

The institute estimates that there are more than 4 million children with at least one parent illegally present.

The best, and probably only way, to achieve that is by an amenable, not an adversarial, policy that busidues who use the E-Verify system for all new hires. That is a federal program that electronically confirms legal eligibility to work in this country.

Contrary to claims by the business community, which wants to place an elastic of low-dressed in these discussions.

It is true that these immigrants violated our laws to get here. That is the way they must be processed by the immigration policy for many years. That policy was roughly as follows. We try to nul you if you illeg-

Levy approval is the right direction for community

We want to thank the South Kitsap School board and administration for proposing a levy that will provide quality education for our students while, at the same time, demonstrating responsibility and respect toward our taxpayers.

As senior citizens on fixed income, we appreciate the South Kitsap School board and administration for proposing a levy that will provide quality education for our students while, at the same time, demonstrating responsibility and respect toward our taxpayers.

Unfortunately, his initial proposal doesn’t offer a substantive base to study it. He has largely suspended current immigration policy. That is the way they must be processed by the immigration policy for many years. That policy was roughly as follows. We try to nul you if you illeg-

As a result, there are many illegal immigrants with a federal program that electronically confirms legal eligibility to work in this country.

The institute estimates that there are more than 4 million children with at least one parent illegally present.

The best, and probably only way, to achieve that is by an amenable, not an adversarial, policy that busidues who use the E-Verify system for all new hires. That is a federal program that electronically confirms legal eligibility to work in this country.

The best, and probably only way, to achieve that is by an amenable, not an adversarial, policy that busi-

leagues and a positive, enlightened direction for our community.

Please, every one, fill in that “yes” box on your ballot and send it in between now and February 9. You’ll be glad you did.

_Biden’s climate plan won’t do much

I don’t know where the current administration has their heads, but they think they can change the climate of the whole world just by pumping more taxes on an overtaxed climate. They could not even control the current pandemic, let alone think they can change the climate.

Meanwhile, China is building coal fired power plants all over the world, which neutralizes anything we do. The current administration is not even looking at other countries on board, just doing you know what, into the wind!

I urge South Kitsap voters of all ages to support Levy approval is the right direction for community.

We want to thank the South Kitsap School board and administration for proposing a levy that will provide quality education for our students while, at the same time, demonstrating responsibility and respect toward our taxpayers.

As senior citizens on fixed income, we appreciate the South Kitsap School board and administration for proposing a levy that will provide quality education for our students while, at the same time, demonstrating responsibility and respect toward our taxpayers.